CLOVER TECHNOLOGIES GROUP ISSUES FIRST ANNUAL SUSTAINABILITY REPORT

CHICAGO, IL (February 17, 2009) Clover Technologies Group Inc., the world's leading provider of vertically integrated, closed-loop environmental solutions has issued its first annual sustainability report.

This first annual sustainability report outlines the major environmental impacts of Clover's North American business operations from January 1, 2009 through December 31, 2009. The report examines the entire life cycle of the products Clover collects and manufactures, reviews 2009 goals and achievements and establishes 2010 objectives.

Findings in the Report Include:

- Clover collected 47 million cartridges; reused over 29 million cartridges; recycled over 2,000 tons
- Clover's cartridges use 91% less virgin materials than OEM cartridges and have an 89% smaller carbon footprint than OEM cartridges
- Clover reduced its waste generation by 6% despite a production growth of 244%
- Conservation efforts preserved 65,308 cubic meters of green space
- Clover purchased enough renewable energy credits to offset the electricity consumption of all its North American facilities

"A huge part of Clover's business is remanufacturing – restoring used products to new condition. Preserving the environment is inherent in our company's processes and success. We are excited to share our business model and document our goals and progress so we can continue to enhance our environmental sustainability," said Jim Cerkleski, CEO of Clover Holdings.
